Evaluation

This match raises a credible level of concern from an integrity perspective due to the strong betting for at least four goals to be scored in total.

Summary of Irregular Betting Activity

1. Strong pre-match betting for at least three goals to be scored in total (on the 2.25 Totals line) emerged in the hours leading up to kick-off, as odds for this outcome decreased to low levels. Regarding team news, Niki Volou 1924 Pae made just two changes for this fixture compared to their previous league match, which most notably saw joint top goalscorer Josete MIRANDA come back into the starting 11 in place of the suspended Lampros POLITIS. Aiolikos FC made three changes for this fixture, including key attacker Goran ZAKARIC coming back into the team. Although both teams saw the return of important attacking players, the betting went beyond that which can be reasonable attributed to team news and raised a credible level of concern after review.
2. In terms of recent form, just one of Niki Volou 1924 Pae's previous five league matches had contained at least three goals in total, whilst just one of Aiolikos FC's previous five league matches away from home had witnessed at least three goals scored. This further highlights the irregular nature of the pre-match betting for at least three goals to be scored in this match.
3. There was strong live betting for at least four goals to be scored in total (on the 3.0 Totals line) witnessed soon after kick-off, as odds for this outcome remained stagnant throughout the opening 15 minutes of the contest (0:0). Further strong betting for this outcome (on the 3.5 Totals line) re-emerged around the 75th minute (2:1) and was sustained into the final minutes of regulation time (2:1), with odds once again failing to increase at the expected rate given the increasingly severe time constraints. No significant pattern of play had been established when this irregular betting preference initially developed (0:0), and moreover there were just two total shots registered between the 75th and 85th minute of the match (2:1). Therefore, it is clear that this strong live betting cannot be fully mitigated by match events alone.

Betting Account Data

Account monitored bookmakers recorded irregular betting for at least three and four goals to be scored in total. Indeed, 88% (EUR 16,642) of attempted turnover in the “Total” market were for these outcomes, which only serves to increase integrity concerns surrounding the match especially when considering the betting patterns discussed previously and the wide range of selections available to bettors.¹

Betting Market Intelligence

An unusual level of turnover was witnessed at the leading betting exchange, Betfair, specifically for at least four goals to be scored in total. Furthermore, an external bookmaker reported to Sportradar that they had witnessed irregular betting activity for at least four goals to be scored in the match. This betting activity across the wider industry only serves to increase integrity concerns surrounding this fixture.
